11.	Brief description of Assignment (information only)	In Bangladesh, there are some wells that had oil/gas shows during drilling but later could not be brought under production due to tight nature of sand, minor oil/gas shows, inconclusive DST result and some wells were suspended due to pressure drop or water breakthrough. The wells/structures being offered are all well-defined anticline/structural closures. Some of them were drilled using old technologies during early 50's to the 80's, while some are recent. Most of the wells/structures are located very close to the divisional headquarters as well as port city of Chittagong, which is an assured gas market having existing gas transportation infrastructure. It is worth mentioning that most of the power generation plants of Bangladesh are gas-based and present gas production does not meet the requirement. The operation may require seismic data acquisition, processing, interpretation or any other interpretation or analysis and well data/well log/DST data analysis followed by conventional and/or unconventional methods like horizontal drilling/fracturing, recompletion etc. Details information on wells/structures will be made available to short listed firms.
